

BROWNIE SCOUTS ENJOY DAY CAMP IN CITY PARK

The unofficial motto of the last day. Now this brought up the question, What skit? What last day? It seems that it is traditional to have a program on the last day and each unit presents a skit. Mrs. Reid explained that this is a fitting end to the camp and the girls enjoy being both actresses and audience.

A further check at the center of camp revealed that while we had been promised ten units, we had only seen eight, where were the other two? They had gone for a hike to Girl Scout House, and had taken their lunch with them. These two units were The Little Red Caboose and The Lavender Blues. When Mrs. Reid was asked how there happened to be two cabooses on this train, she explained that the girls themselves selected the titles and that if there happened to be duplication that just added to the fun. Two units wanted to be Lavender Blue, but settled for one being Lavender Green. It seems that this is a fine experiment in democratic living, when girls are taught to settle their differences on this basis.

Both Mrs. Cook and Mrs. Reid expressed their gratitude to the Torrance Park Department, and for the cooperation of Messrs. Cook, Treolar, and Dodson. They were also anxious to let us know that the camp could not be run without the help of the unit leaders to whom they, the girls, and their parents owe a vote of thanks. We, too, are glad to give credit where credit's due, so here's the list:

Summer Rites Unite Richard Roberts and Dorothy Leming

White frosted organza was chosen by the former Dorothy Leming, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Leming, 2439 W. 25th street for her wedding when she exchanged vows with Richard Roberts, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Shioli, 20947 Denker street, at the East Side Christian Church, Long Beach.

Fashioned with a tight-fitting bodice with puff sleeves, very full skirt and train, her gown was complemented with a finger-tip veil of nylon tulle which was caught into a ruffled halo, trimmed with gardenias. She carried gardenias and carnations surrounding a detachable white orchid corsage.

Carrying out the colors of the rainbow the bridal attendants chose various pastel colors for their gowns which were fashioned like that of the bride, old-fashioned knit gloves, large hats to match the gowns with ribbon-trimmings in harmonizing colors.

Mrs. Roy Cook was matron of honor and bridesmaids were Bernice Meng, Lucille Mayo, Nancy Baird, Dorothy West, Peggy McIntyre and Betty Langren.

Preceding the bridal party down the aisle were little Sandra Stevens as flower girl and Dean Holland, cousin of the bride, as ring bearer.

Bill Roberts served his brother as best man with Roy Cook, Glynn, Wayne Jones, Jeff Sullivan and Bill West as ushers. Lighting the tall tapers throughout the church before the ceremony was the bridegroom's brother, Jackie Shioli. Large baskets of white gladioli and larkspur were arranged in the chancel and at the ends of the pews.

Don Carter was organist and accompanied Norman Colcord, soloist, as he sang "Because" and "Through the Years" before the ceremony and "The Lord's Prayer" at the close of the service.

A reception followed in the church social hall with the bride cutting the four-tiered cake which was served with punch. Hostesses were Mesdames S. M. Holland, Bill Baird, J. P. Jackson, Dan Ferrell, and E. B. Clark. Mrs. Grant Speaker presided over the bride's book and Mrs. Zona Williamson, the wedding gifts.

A honeymoon followed in Old Mexico and, upon their return, the couple will reside in Long Beach. ### Summertime Refrigeration Care is Told Everybody perspires in the summertime so why blame your hard-working refrigerator when its sweats a bit?

Homemaking experts of the General Electric Consumers Institute say that sweating inside a refrigerator during humid weather is entirely normal and to be expected. And, say the experts, though it can't be completely eliminated, such sweating definitely can be controlled.

Next time you're enjoying a long cool drink, take a look at the glass. Those drops of water which collect on the outside of the tumbler are condensed out of the air by the cold surface of the glass. The same thing happens in your refrigerator. The cold inner walls condense moisture from the warm, moist air which rushes in every time you open the refrigerator.

Actually, moisture in the refrigerator is a desirable condition because high humidity is necessary for good food preservation. But excessive sweating is, of course, undesirable.

According to the Consumers Institute, there are three steps you can take to control internal sweating.

All liquids and moist foods should be covered. This will prevent drying out of the food and eliminate the evaporation of moisture from them. Thus, frost and internal sweating are reduced.

Every time the refrigerator is opened, more moist warm air has a chance to enter the cabinet. Part of this moisture condenses as frost on the evaporator; the remainder collects on the other cool surfaces of the refrigerator and sweating results. Opening the door as little as possible not only keeps out moisture, but also cuts power consumption because the refrigerating mechanism runs more often if the door is opened frequently.
